EASTMAN'S RESIGNATION.

The Committee of the Council will Resign its place.

The special committee of councilmen appointed by Mayor Harrison to investigate the charges against Deputy Street Commissioner W. S. Eastman has decided on a report, which will be made next Monday night. The committee will recommend that "the resignation of Mr. Eastman be accepted, and the committee continued for further investigation."

The object of this report is to make the office of deputy street commissioner vacant in order that John Troutman may be put there. If this report of the committee is adopted it is generally understood that the investigation will be quietly dropped, or allowed to go by default.

The Lucy Stone Memorial.

The Lucy Stone memorial exercises are being held this afternoon at Music hall. A meeting was held about two weeks ago, of this character, but on account of the small number present, it was decided to repeat it. The programme consists of a paper on the home life of Lucy Stone, by Mrs. L. O. Case, and one on her public life by Mrs. F. S. Lyon. In addition to the Mrs. J. K. Hudson gives some personal reminiscences of Lucy Stone. The Misses Morgan sing, and Mrs. E. A. Munger of Chicago, reads a paper which she prepared to read before the congress of religions.

HE DIDN'T FIND HER.

"Prof." Leonard is Gone, But Without Miss Bonestee.

HIS RECORD IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The "Chronicle" Talks as If Mr. Leonard Left San Francisco All Too Soon.

Professor J. G. Leonard, clairvoyant, mind reader and astrologer has gone. He left Topeka this morning for Kansas City on the Santa Fe line. Topeka didn't pay. There were not enough people who want "clairvoyancing" done.

Prof. Leonard, did not, however, take the missing Miss Maude Bonestee back to Kansas City with him, but when he left the capital he had included as his bill when he arrived here, that no would find the missing girl within sixty days.

When Prof. Leonard came to Topeka he said he had lately come from San Francisco, and there is every reason to believe he told the truth, as his statement of having been in the city of the Midwinter fair is verified. By the following taken from the San Francisco Chronicle of Tuesday, February 26:

"Prof. J. G. Leonard, clairvoyant, mind reader, psychic diagnostician, etc., hath vanished into the unknown in California without a trace."

"His office at 124 O'Farrell street knows him no more, and the golden letters on his ornate glittering shingle are blotted out with a sweep of black paint."

"And great sorrow is scattered far and wide broadways throughout the city; women are weeping, and the teeth of speculators gnash; but for all that the professor is not."

"Just three weeks ago the professor came to town with many diamonds of great worth, a flourish and an unassuming doctor. The doctor's name was Jones, and he believed in the professor as a sort of latter-day Messiah."

The Chronicler goes on to tell how Prof. Leonard and the "doctor" whose name is Jones, pranced together—the professor told the people all about their ailments and the doctor furnished the pills. Business was good until their office at 124 O'Farrell street was sought out by minors who had paid fabulous sums to Prof. Leonard for locating "veeds" which did not "pan out."

One minor, who was searching for the professor, but did not find him, told his tale of woe in these words:

"Where in blazes is that blasted mine as it costed me four hundred hard plunks for locatin'? No, I don't kindeh about playin' out stuff, but when it comes to packin' an' havin' it over the mountains and seventeen deserts, no goin' broke an' scappin' lookin' for a lead as never was no lead, burrin' in a crazed professor's mind's eye—then I says as how the jape's been an' gone too far, an' I want to be loose and loose with the professor."

After dodging miners and police who were not headed for three short weeks, Prof. Leonard left his office one morning and did not return. When the doctor realized that his partner was gone he began to figure up his expense account and found himself just $80 short on account of his three week's business with the magician.

Chas. P. Elliott went to Atchison this morning to make arrangements for the printing for the "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" company, which he is going to start out at an early date.

The revival services at the Cumberland Presbyterian church are being continued with increased interest and there will be services each night at 7:30 until Sunday night at least.

The Rutledge Dramatic company has been playing this week at the Crawford. Five or six members of the company are far above the average popular price actor, and the troupe as a whole give a very good entertainment. Last night they presented a five act melodrama entitled "Tempest Tossed," and tonight they will give the laughable comedy, "The Red Fox." They give a matinee Saturday afternoon.

A VOICE FROM THE "TOMBS"

Jack McClurg Wears a Ball and Chain and Makes Complaint.

Jack McClurg, who is serving out a sentence of $500 or 50 days in the city jail for being disorderly in the Salvation Army, is making half refusals of work on the rock pile, and as the result he is locked up in one of the lower cells, with ball and chain attached to his feet, and is being fed with three pieces of bread and a pint of water twice a day.

McClurg has borne up under this diet several days, but now he is beginning to complain in strong language. There is no bedding in the cell and he has to sleep on a cut made of crossed iron bars in comparison with which plain boards are luxuries. He told a reporter that he saw a blanket on the top of his cell yesterday and by working stealthily for some time succeeded in drawing it into the cell. Jaller Woodruff found it there and not only took it away, but had a ball and chain attached to him.

The other prisoners bear McClurg out in the statement that a clear-cut and unbiased trial was given him. The following communication:

"DEAR SIR—I would like to explain myself as to the way they are treating prisoners at the city jail. For myself they are treating me like a dog. The judge fined me fifty dollars and committed me until it was paid. They have me locked up in a cell day and night. I have to sleep on the iron for a bed. Every morning they let me have three slices of dry bread and one pint of cold water; nothing for dinner, and bread and water again for supper. If that is not cruelty I do not know what is. Also they do not allow any outsider to see me. They use two other prisoners in the same way. Yours truly, McClurg's case is an aggravated one. He has disturbed the Salvation Army meetings until forbearance ceases to be a virtue. He well deserves punishment, and he will get no sympathy as regards his diet. If the bread is good and the water is good, he has no particular reason to complain as long as he refuses to work for his fine; but it approaches cruelty to compel the man to sleep on an iron, besides without even a blanket. The trouble with police officials is that they carry their punishment too far. Punishment should be tempered with humanity and common sense; and the police board should look more closely into these matters. They are responsible. The police department is not a machine to be merely set going and allowed to run without careful and frequent inspection by members of the probity law."

JACK MCCLURG."

In commuting the sentence he might commute it from $100 to $1, or to one cent, but in commuting the sentence of these Hiawatha druggists he commutes them from $100 in each case to the costs only.

I take the position that the costs are no part of the sentence and the government was technically wrong in so considering them.

I have talked the matter over with the governor and his sole reason in granting these pardons or commutations was that these druggists might not lose their certificates as pharmacists.

The state law provides that when a druggist is convicted of violation of the prohibitory law his name is taken from the list of licensed pharmacists and Dr. Embrey who urged the pardon of these men took the grounds that they should not be driven out of their business because of a technical violation of the prohibitory law."

"The governor has however, the power to commute any part of a sentence with the published notice of application having been given.

IN COMMUTING THE SENTENCES

Or the Druggists at Hiawatha—Attorney General Little So Stares To-day.

Gov. Lewelling has come up under this when he commuted the sentences of the three Hiawatha druggists who were convicted of violating the prohibitory law, according to a statement made in a letter written today by Attorney General Little to the county attorney of Brown county.

The three druggists thus referred to were Dr. L. R. Yates, Chas. V. Pyle and John W. Pottinger, and they were sentenced by the judge of the district court to pay a fine of $300 each and the costs in their respective cases.

Attorney General Little said today:

"According to our statutes the governor cannot pass upon a pardon where the offence committed is a felony, unless the case is first passed on by the state board of pardons."

"In all cases of misdemeanors where the sentence is a fine or imprisonment in the county jail, the governor has full power to act, but even in cases of that character a notice of application for a pardon must be published for two weeks in some paper of general circulation in the county where the judgment resides."

"The governor has however, the power to commute any part of a sentence with the published notice of application having been given.
